KÆRE MEDLEM

Lad mig endnu engang udtrykke vores taknemmelighed i forbindelse med støtten gennem de sidste 3 måneder. Vi er her endnu, og troen på fremtiden er naturligvis intakt. Det betyder også at vi nu har fået sammensat et efterårs program, hvor vi forventer at kunne vende tilbage med Casual Days, om end vi endnu ikke kender retningslinjerne for hvordan de bliver afholdt. Det ved vi først når vi kommer til august.

De virtuelle smagninger har vi fået mange positive tilbagemeldinger på, så de bliver også en del af det samlede medlemstilbud i fremtiden. Vi har allerede planlagt en virtuel smagning i september, og regner med at lave en i november ligeså.

Datoerne for resten af årets Casual Days kan du se bagerst i dette Outturn, og der er faktisk kun en enkelt ændring. Medlemmerne i København er nødt til at betale en lille pris, idet der var så mange konfirmationer der blev udskudt i dette forår. Jeg er derfor blevet spurgt af Kareten om vi kunne rykke datoen for arrangementet i august. Da de naturligvis ikke lever af at vi kommer og drikker whisky, var det eneste rigtige at gøre at vi rykkede os, så har vi nemlig også et godt sted at være i fremtiden. Det er kun datoen i august, de øvrige datoer er uændrede. Men datoen i august er nu en søndag. Sådan bliver det nødt til at være, og vi håber at der trods alt er et par stykker der har lyst til at se os igen søndag den 15. august.

Sidst i juli er vi måske en smule klogere på retningslinjerne, så der åbner vi for tilmelding til Casual Days. Det bliver også der vi sender Outturnet for august på gaden. Vi har erfaret at rigtig mange er blevet trygge ved at bruge vores webshop, så fremover kommer tilmelding til Casual Days til at ske gennem den. Det bliver sådan at man køber det antal billetter man skal bruge til en given Casual Day. En billet koster 100 kroner, og så får man udleveret en velkomst dram og 3 poletter ved ankomst. Der er mange åbenlyse fordele ved denne metode, ikke blot administrativt, men også når der skal bydes velkommen til de mange glade medlemmer.

I hånden har du nu juli måneds Outturn, og det byder på 6 nye aftapninger, samt 2 whisky og en armagnac fra bagkataloget, der sælges med en pæn rabat i juli måned. Har du lyst til at smage alle 9, kan du købe et smagesæt på hjemmesiden. Der vil blive lagt 3 små videoer op, så har du mulighed for at høre vores kommentarer når du sidder på terrassen og nyder drammene – hvis du har lyst ☐

Terje og Thomas går live i aften, mandag den 22. juli for at ønske jer en god sommer, og fortæller lidt om videoerne og terrassepakkerne.

Simon passer butikken i Vejle i ugerne 27 og 28. Uge 29 er vi alle på ferie, så der er lukket. Det vil dog være sådan, at flasker bestilt til afhentning inden fredag i uge 28 stadig kan afhentes i uge 29 i receptionen.

Fra og med uge 30 er Thomas tilbage på pinden, så kig endelig forbi, hvis jeres tur skulle tage jer gennem Vejle.

Med disse ord vil hele teamet gerne ønske alle en rigtig god sommer – og på GLÆDELIGT gensyn i august og månederne der kommer.

Med venlig hilsen
Thomas Korsgaard

Typically thrilling at first nosing. Lots of umami broths, saline beach foam, sand, gorse, wind-raked rock pools, mineral salts, bath bombs, corn bread, sooty waxes, malt extract, hessian and lots of fresh pineapple chunks. Some kind of salty mead was muted. Water enhanced the salinity and brought a more floral and fragrant side with additional notes of sunflower oil and bacon fat. The palate opened beautifully on white stone fruits, guava, menthol tobacco, pistachio ice cream and vanilla soda. More subtle notes of herbal cough syrups, jasmine tea and beach pebbles lingered underneath. With water we found a more easy and luscious side. Tutti frutti, gravely mineral notes, anthracite, salt and pepper calamari, lime pith and slightly sweet cereals.

Sipping rum from a coconut as whirls of cinnamon, nutmeg and custard washed over us, we relaxed like dark chocolate melting in the Caribbean sun. Divine dried fruits of figs, sultanas and raisins joined dark toffee and molasses with tangy marmalade on brown toast. A larger-than-life mouthfeel brought bundles of crystallised ginger and chewy toffee alongside spiced rum, honeycomb and chocolate brownies. Water caressed us with Chinese five spice on layers of blackberries, raspberries and blueberries as nutmeg dominated the character of an old spice cupboard. A rounded palate coupled dried orange skin, fresh figs and dates with more spice from cardamom and cinnamon just before an extensive finish ventured further into blackcurrant jam and plum pie with a burnt crust.

Lush and suggestively sweet. Lots of herbal butter, hibiscus tea, jasmine, heather flowers, bath bombs, juicy fruit chewing gum, bitter lemon, vanilla biscuits in the over, green cherries, a sprig of lavender and ripe banana. With reduction it gets more overtly citrusy. Also toasted sunflower seeds, cocktail bitters, nutmeg, fresh breakfast cereals and coriander seed. The mouth is wonderfully syrupy in texture. Tutti frutti, papaya, mango chunks, pineapple cube sweeties, red kola syrup, cherryade and mint leaf. Some sweet American cream soda floats with a drizzle of young Sauternes. Water gives spiced custard, Darjeeling tea, caramel milkshake and barley sugar with a lick of marjoram, oregano and retsina pine wine.

Thick plumes of black smoke bellowed from the glass, epitomising the very essence of burntiness. Through the heavy smog came notes of rosemary and thyme and substantially charred wood coated with linseed oil. The palate was chewy and scorched, wrapping rich gravy around eminently maritime components that embraced fishing nets and fisherman's rain coats in a ship's engine room. With water we found ourselves at the harbour sipping on cappuccinos among the lobster nets and fish baskets, as puffs of smoke from a tug boat blew in the sea air. The palate had sweetened and ventured into roasted chestnuts and toasted pine nuts, dotted with seaweed and a sprinkling of chimney soot.

This one opens on farmyards drenched in medicine. The aromas are texturally fatty and thick. Raw seawater, kippers wrapped in sheep wool, black olive tapenade, fisherman's boots, dirty brine and peat-flecked silage. Water brings a more heathery peat smoke. Also peat ashes, kiln air, hot smoky wort, lime juice, oyster sauce, cow sheds, wet dogs, battery acid and fermenting hay. The texture in the mouth is even fattier and denser. Lots of smoked game meats, engine oil, boiler smoke and wood ash. Salty fetta cheese, pine sap, germolene and genital eau de vie. With water there's pink sea salt, pickled onions, fisherman's friends, cod liver oil, salted white fish, acid drop sweeties, mexcal, disinfectant and briny beach pebbles.

The nose leads you, through an old wardrobe interior, into a land of toasted marshmallows, creamy toffee, foamy bananas, walnut fudge and a bonfire of nut shells. The palate is big and punchy, with clean, penetrating smoke – chocolate raisins, green peppercorns, liquorice root and fried red chillies. The reduced nose is cleaner and more complex – Calvados-soaked oak, Barbour waxed jackets, singed orange peel, Pontefract cakes and nicotine tar; maybe even tuna Niçoise with sweet, smoky vinaigrette. The reduced palate majors on nutty, earthy flavours – sweet pipe tobacco (in a briar pipe) and chilli dark chocolate with a mouth-drawing, ashy finish.

An aroma of slices of blood orange in sweet rose water was followed by theatre-style buttered popcorn, caramel mud cake and millionaire's shortbread. On the palate neat like a sweet, dark chocolate, hazelnut and salted caramel tart however in the finish we detected a sharp, 'sub-acid' flavour of cooking apples as well as salt and vinegar crisps. When we added a drop of water there emerged a sweet/spicy scent of Gewurztraminer cranberry sauce seasoned with allspice berries, cinnamon, nutmeg, peppercorn and cloves whilst to taste pickled sour green plums – a crunchy, moreish, sweet, salty, sour spicy delight!

The nose neat had an immediate effect on all of us – our thoughts slowed down; our minds became calm and quiet as we relaxed more and more. We imagined sitting on the beach with a bonfire made out of driftwood listening to the smooth sound of a single romantic Spanish guitar. The sun dipped below the horizon as we sipped a 'smoky Libertine cocktail' (lemon and orange juice, maple syrup, orange marmalade and fresh rosemary). With a drop of water as the night drew in, a gentle sea breeze ruffling the beach grass and the full moon reflected over the sea, we enjoyed a sweet and creamy cigar.

A molten copper breastplate shows ripe, yet savoury, figs, plums and orange citrus fruit with overtones of warm Demerara sugar and marshmallows gently toasting on a skewer of soft warm oak, sprinkled with the merest touch of saw dust. The mouth is invitingly soft and unctuous. The marshmallows open things up their sticky warmth being enveloped with ripe candied fruit, with some light sappiness joining the party towards the end, bringing a welcome party seven of structure to the rich mouth feel. As the music fades drying delicate tannins play on. From the Baco grape.

A man in a dark suit and white shirt is holding a large, clear glass bottle of whisky. The bottle is partially filled with a golden liquid. In the foreground, on a dark wooden table, there is a glass filled with whisky and several ice cubes. The lighting is warm and focused on the bottle and glass, creating a sophisticated atmosphere. The background is dark and out of focus.
